The Fulbright Distinguished Awards in Teaching Program for International Teachers (Fulbright DAI)

will provide approximately 47 educators with a unique opportunity to complete individual or group projects, take courses for professional development at a host university, observe, collaborate and share their expertise with U.S. colleagues in public, private, secular, and religious schools. Fulbright DAI will commence in January 2021 and conclude in May 2021. Fulbright DAI is a five-month non-degree, non-credit, intensive professional development program at a U.S. university. The curriculum includes academic coursework, leadership training, and instructional technology seminars. Fulbright Distinguished Teachers are actively engaged with U.S. schools. They are given opportunities to observe, co-teach, and share their expertise, building collaborative, lasting connections with teachers and students. Participants also collaborate with their peers as part of a professional learning community on their inquiry projects to develop educational materials, workshops, or other resources to meet an educational need in their home community. Each participant also completes an inquiry project of relevance to their teaching practice independently, or as part of a group. Cultural enrichment, and support will be provided throughout the program.

After returning home, educators who successfully complete the program will be eligible to compete for small grants for essential teaching materials, follow-on training for other educators, collaborative projects with participating U.S. schools, and other activities that build on the exchange experience.
